Emory to hold online solidarity vigil for victims of racial violence

The Emory Libraries staff shares the pain and frustration felt by the University and Atlanta communities over the ongoing racial injustice. Emory University will hold an online solidarity vigil for the Emory community on Friday, June 5, at 4 p.m. to mourn the victims of racial violence and focus on the university's vision for an anti-racist world. Read Emory President Claire Sterk's message linked below and register at the link included in the article.

A Conversation with Richard Blanco June 24

In honor of LGBT Pride Month, poet Richard Blanco, the youngest, first Latino, first immigrant, and first openly gay person to serve as inaugural poet (for President Obama in 2013), will read and discuss his poetry in "Belonging: Reflections on Identity, Exile, and Home." Blanco writes movingly about immigrants, identity, and love. This virtual event will take place at 2 p.m. on Wednesday, June 24. The event is presented by Florida International University and Emory University.

Pride Month blog series

In recognition of Pride Month, Emory Libraries will feature blogs written by our staff that focus on LGBTQ resources available online through the Libraries, including movies, ebooks, and more. The first blog, posted June 1, highlights feature films and documentaries. Don't have an active Emory login? See if your local public library has subscribed to a similar service.
