Happy holidays from the Emory Libraries

The entire staff at the Emory Libraries wishes you a happy and healthy holiday season. We look forward to serving our patrons in the new year.

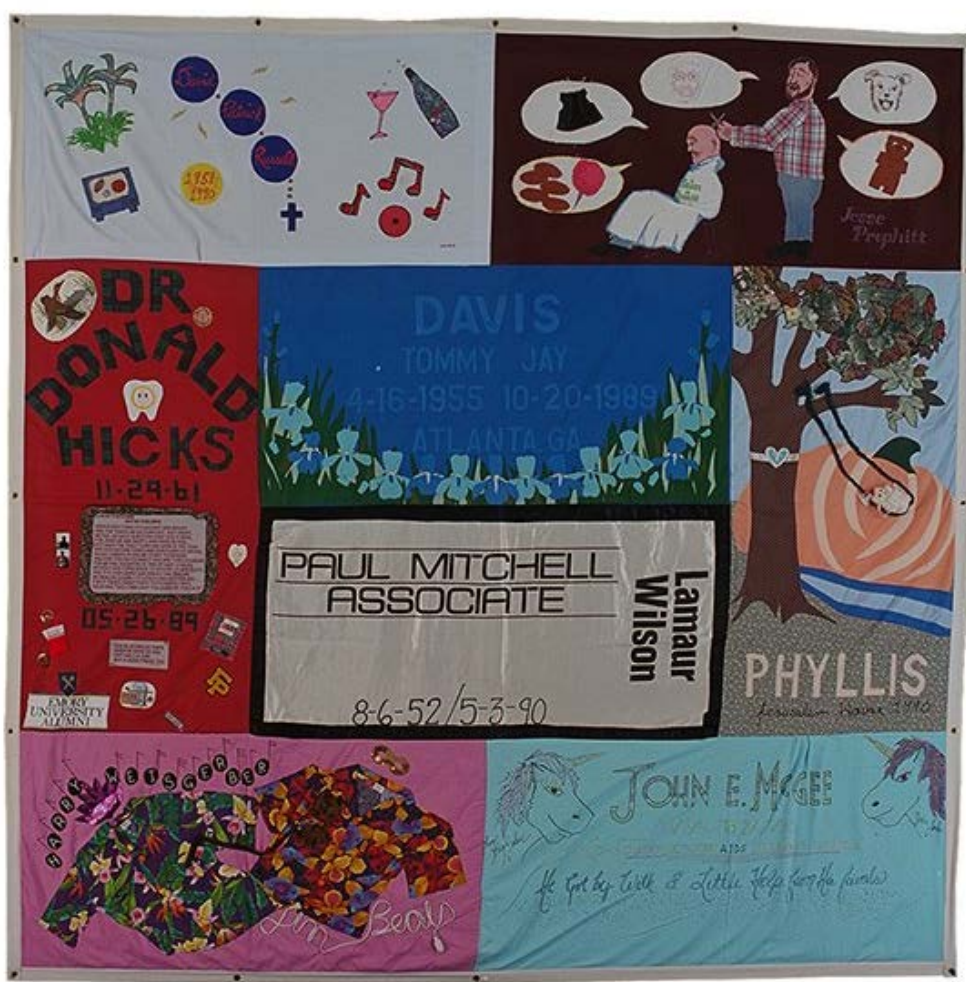

Final Reconstruction seminar is Dec. 10

“Reconstruction Activism,” the final panel in the Rose Library’s Lift Every Voice 2020 Speaker Series, will take place at 10 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 10. Students, faculty, and the general public are invited to register and attend this virtual event.

With a focus on the creative arts, education and religion, this panel event will examine how activism for racial equality and justice in the current moment has been shaped by the past. The program will last an hour, with the final 15 minutes reserved for questions.

World AIDS Day brings quilt display in Atlanta, virtual display online

Even though Emory was unable to host and display the Quilt on the Quad for World AIDS Day on Dec. 1 due to COVID-19 restrictions this year (the Woodruff Library usually displays the quilt afterward), we can still see the quilt and remember those lost to HIV/AIDS. The National AIDS Memorial digitized the quilt panels and created a virtual display, so people can view the quilt from home. And the Atlanta History Center will exhibit an AIDS quilt through Dec. 31.

Curl up with a good ebook or audiobook

The COVID-19 pandemic may have quashed our annual holiday travel and gathering plans, but take heart – there is more time for reading, both of the leisurely and serious kind. You can download Emory OverDrive ebooks and audiobooks with a current Emory ID. Find out at the link below how to install the OverDrive app if you don’t have it.

And whether or not you’re a current Emory student, faculty or staff member, you can expand your reading list by perusing the top 2020 reads from the New York Times, NPR, and Publishers Weekly.
